Harry Potter and the Powerful Book

It was a beautiful morning in Diagon Alley. People were bustling all around, doing their shopping. Cravey the evil house-elf, who had escaped his masters, was wandering around, looking for the Powerful Book. The Powerful Book could save peoples' lives; unlock doors and lots of other interesting things.

After awhile, Cravey had found a map that showed how to get the Powerful Book. Suddenly, Harry Potter and his friends, Hermione Granger and Ron Weasley came down the street, looking for the same thing too. Cravey had to find a hiding place... and fast. He saw a sheltered space between two shops. So he quickly ran into the gap.

As Harry, Hermione and Ron walked past, Cravey kept an eye on them to make sure they wouldn't spot him. Then, it turned dark and started to rain. Harry, Ron and Hermione instantly ran for cover in between the two shops where Cravey was. Harry spotted the sheet in Cravey's hand. He quickly hid it behind his back, but Harry had already seen enough of it to know what it was.

“Hand it over Cravey”, Harry said.

“Hand what over”, replied Cravey acting as though he didn’t know what Harry was talking about.

“No way am I handing it over”, retorted Cravey.

As quick as a flash, Cravey rushed out of the alleyway but Ron blocked the way out. Cravey climbed through Ron’s legs. Ron then grabbed the map. Once Cravey had run away out of sight, Ron, Harry and Hermione opened out the sheet and had a look. Ron spotted the cross where the Book was hidden and whispered “The Book has been at Hogwarts all along”. “Well then, what are we waiting for”, replied Hermione.

... Cravey had just run through the front door yelling with joy at this master. “Master, master, I’ve found the map”. He suddenly realised that he didn’t have it. “I-I-I mean I don’t have it”, he stammered, afraid he’ll be in trouble for going out and that he didn’t have the map anymore.

...
Meanwhile, the three friends were just arriving outside of Hogwarts. Ron was holding the map. When he looked down to see how far they had to go, Ron said “Blimey Harry, it’s in our old dormitory”. So Ron, Harry and Hermione ran up the front stairs to the school and up to Gryffindor Tower. They clambered quickly inside. While Hermione waited in the common room, Ron and Harry raced up the stairs to the boys’ dormitory. Once they got up there they apologised for barging in and then grabbed the book. When Ron picked up the Book to give it to Harry, he felt a funny sensation. The same thing happened to Harry and Hermione. “Did you boys feel a tingly sensation”, Hermione asked. “Yes”, both boys chorused. “I wonder if it’s because we have those wonderful powers now”, Hermione said.

They said goodbye to all the other Gryffindors and then made their way out of the castle.

...

Back at the house where Cravey and his masters lived, Cravey was getting into so much trouble. “You idiot” yelled one of his masters, “with that book we could have taken over the world”.

Written by Kayla – Year 4